

ALEXANDRIA TO SUE TO RECOVER TAXES

Assessment of Estate of John A. Marshall May Bring City $20,000 in Cash.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 17.—Suit to recover taxes on property, amounting to more than $20,000, which were not assessed against the estate of John A. Marshall, who died May 3, 1913, will be instituted in the corporation court on November 30. The suit will be brought by the State, represented by Commonwealth Attorney Samuel G. Brent. The Marshall estate will be represented by Col. Francis S. Smith. Agreement as to the time the motion will be made to correct the assessment was reached by the two attorneys today.

The discovery of the erroneous assessment made against the Marshall estate and the failure to list a large amount of personal property for taxes was discovered by W. N. Lipscomb, of this city, who is a member of the Virginia Tax Commission. He is the owner of records for this judicial circuit.

In consequence, the assessment is corrected according to the figures of the Marshall estate. The Marshall estate will be compelled to pay back taxes to the Commonwealth and the city amounting to approximately $20,000.

Several other large estates also will be sued for back taxes, because of discoveries made by Mr. Lipscomb.

A deed was placed on record today transferring a house and lot on the south side of Cameron street, between Henry and Patrick streets, from John D. Normoyle to Lula Callaway.

SUFFRAGE FIGHTER

MISS MABEL VERNON, Of the Congressional Union, who has just returned to Washington from Nevada, where she helped win the vote for women.

VOTE CAMPAIGNER
BACK FROM NEVADA

Miss Vernon Tells How Suffragists Canvassed Every Hamlet in State.

Jubilant over the suffragist victory in Nevada, and full of enthusiasm, Miss Mabel Vernon, of the Congressional Union, returned to Washington this morning from that State, where during the past six months she has put forth strenuous efforts for the suffragist cause.

"It was a long, hard fight, and at times it seemed almost hopeless," she said this morning, "but we stuck to it, and we won, despite the efforts of the leading men in Reno to beat us. And you know when a person does what she starts out to do, she can't help feeling good about it," she added with a smile.

"During the past summer we personally interviewed about every man and woman in the State, going into every hamlet and not leaving until all the houses had been visited. One might say the votes for woman suffrage were literally hand-picked in Nevada."

Miss Vernon seems none the worse for her exertions. In fact, she is a picture of health, having a ruddy tan from campaigning in the open, and declares that she never felt better in her life.

"I'm ready to go anywhere that Miss Paul wishes to send me and start right to work again," she said, when asked if she would remain in Washington and rest up for a few weeks. "I tired! This idea! Why I never felt more like work in my life, and expect to remain here only long enough to get my orders."

man Miller, commander, in the chair. The tent has been successful in early accomplishing its desire to increase interest among members and also secure additional members. A social time followed the business.

Folkman A. C. Ogle, of the Eleventh precinct, last night apprehended Arthur Twigg, who had run away from the National Training School for Boys, and he was returned to that institution. The boy was in Twining City.

Daniels Reticent About Reported Tilt With Board

Secretary of the Navy Daniels refused this morning to discuss reports to the effect that he and the general board of the navy had fought over the board's proposed recommendation to Congress asking for $500 additional men. It is understood, however, that such a tilt occurred, and that a compromise was reached only after a heated argument.

The increase in the enlisted ranks urged by the general board and the number needed to make up the deficit now existing between the number of men now in the navy and the number necessary to properly man the warships. The board is said to have refused to agree to, with the threat on his part that he would not permit the recommendations to be published. It was finally agreed to exclude the recommendations from the Secretary's report, but to publish them separately.

MILITAMEN MOVING INTO NEW QUARTERS

Artillery, Signal, and Hospital Corps Will Have More Commodious Quarters.

The task of moving offices and equipment of the First Battery of Artillery, the Signal Corps, and the Hospital Corps of the District National Guard, into new quarters on First street northwest, began today and by December these three branches of the citizen soldiery will be at home under the same roof.

The present week will be given over to moving the Signal Corps, the first load of saddles and harness equipment having been moved this morning. Next Monday the battery will begin to move its heavy paraphernalia, and as soon as it has finished the Hospital Corps will move. For several years the battery and Hospital Corps have shared the armory building on B street northwest, just east of Sixth street and the Hospital Corps has been quartered at the Center Market Armory.

Will Have More Space.

The new building, which has been leased for several years, was formerly the old Business High School and is four stories high. It will give the militiamen more room than they have had heretofore. On the ground floor are two large rooms, each 75x26 feet, and the one on the south side is being remodelled with a concrete floor to accommodate the firing battery of four gun sections and one caisson section.

The north room will contain the four-story and two extra caissons, the battery, store, and escort wagons and all harness and single mounted equipment.

On the south side of the second floor will be rooms for the battery officers, the quartermaster's store room, and locker rooms for the artillerymen. The other half of the floor will be similarly divided, the Signal Corps occupying the north half and the Hospital Corps the south half. The third floor, and a large general assembly room, the other half of the floor will have the entire fourth floor.

The Wireless Equipment.

The Signal Corps has dismantled its wireless station at the B street armory and will erect a much more powerful one at its new quarters. The wireless station, in command of the Signal Corps, and Capt. Louis C. Vogt, in command of the Signal Corps, are co-operating in arranging their winter program.

Bids have been let for the removal of 125 steel lockers belonging to the battery and seventy-seven for the signal men.

The Signal Corps will give a big housewarming the evening of December 8. The annual inspection of the equipment of the battery was completed by the Signal Corps yesterday. An account of the proximity of moving day the inspection entailed a lot of hard work on the part of Captain Vogt, Armorer Willis S. Bryant, and others, but at its conclusion the local men were given to understand informally that everything from saddle blankets to firing pins had been found in first class condition.
